

SPAN S-27. Spanish Oral Survival (CRN: 31128)

Yolanda Jacqueline Pelaez MA, Teaching Assistant in Romance Languages and Literatures, Harvard University

To develop oral fluency in Spanish, while introducing attitudes, values, art, and different aspects of contemporary life and culture in Spain and Latin America, this course (conducted entirely in Spanish) provides students with opportunities to act out typical situations they would encounter in a Spanish-speaking environment. It also includes songs from different regions, news reports, and paintings. Although oral proficiency is not a prerequisite, the course is best suited to students who already have a good grounding in the grammar of the language.
